Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 1-6 and 12-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claims 1 and 12, the data (second) frequency is said to be lower than the wake-up (first) frequency. However, as disclosed, the wake-up frequency is 475Hz while the data frequency is 38 kHz.

Claims 2 and 3 are in the form of a method of using the structure recited, which improperly depends from an article claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over van Dinteren et al in view of Buccola.

Van Dinteren et al discloses a battery powered (column 5, line 32) window covering which is manipulated by an IR remote control system and which is concerned with saving power and addresses this issue by providing a well known sleep mode for the receiver (column 5, lines 43-61). Buccola also discloses a remote control unit for actuating an operator, in this case a door lock. Buccola discloses an alternative means for saving battery power which serves his receiver system. Specifically, referencing Fig.

Art Unit: 3634

3 and column 4, lines 22-45, a series of amplifiers 36,42, precede passage of the signals to each of a separate low frequency detector and a high frequency detector, the low frequency detector signaling the wake-up circuit while the high frequency detector signals the data receiving circuit of the microprocessor. The presence of the two frequency detectors indicates that two signals are produced. The wake up signal saves power drain and "prepares", i.e. wake up, the data receiver. One of ordinary skill in the art would have looked to Buccola to find an alternative, and superior, means for saving the battery power of van Dinteren et al and would have found such a combination obvious.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any
